NAHU Executive Vice President Kevin Corcoran Announces Resignation

To many convention attendees surprise and disappointment, NAHU Executive Vice President Kevin Corcoran announced his resignation at the NAHU 75th Annual Convention in Miami last month. Kevin joined NAHU over 10 years ago at one of the association's most troubled times. With expert guidance, he assisted in bringing NAHU from near bankruptcy to almost $2 million in the red.

A perennial fixture on Washington's Most Powerful People in Health Care list, Kevin has represented the association well. In recent years, NAHU's credibility has grown leaps and bounds in the nation's capitol. President Bush, many legislators and various associations often look to NAHU for expert advice on the issues faces the industry today.

Kevin will become the Executive Vice President of the American Chiropractors Association.

Ari Fleischer, who served as White House Press Secretary from 2001 to 2003, was one of the keynote speakers at the National Conference in Miami. Ari shared what it was like to be with the President on September 11th, interesting insight on President Bush and examples of media bias.

Attendees were also treated to a talk by Mike Abrashoff, author of the best selling book It's Your Ship: Management Techniques from the Best Damn Ship in the Navy. Abrashoff detailed leadership techniques he used to turn his ship, the USS Benfold, into the Navy's top performers. These techniques weren't all business- trips to Home Depot, Cuban cigars and Karaoke were just a few keys to his success.
